OCTOBER, 2007

VOLUME I, NUMBER II

It's Already Been a Month

Cameron and Olivia stretching during class.

Christmas is coming as you all know. Last week we began working on our Christmas dances. I am hoping the girls will be able to dance at Abundant Life Church one Sunday in December. I will let you know the date and what time the girls will need to be at the church.

Also, if you are interested in having the girls and I come to minister in dance at your church as well, please let me know. You can shoot me an e-mail at info@rdancestudio.com.

Classes

Classes have been going so great. From Scripture, the children are learning things from the Fruit of the Spirit to the Armor of God. In the ballet realm, they are learning the importance of their body placement and posture.

A dancer's ability to execute movements is based on his/her aplomb, or vertical stability and alignment.

Sometimes it may be hard to remember that improvement comes through hard work. Although we have fun in class, I encourage the students to work as hard as they can and to focus on what they are doing. No matter how experienced the teacher is, "the ultimate responsibility for their development lies with the students themselves" (John White).

I can already see improvement in the girls. I am looking forward to seeing their ability in June when its time for the recital.

If you have any questions about ballet (ie: the technique, terms, etc), I would happy to answer them. It is very helpful when parents also know the ins and outs.

Family Days

If everything works out, this month's family day will involve us volunteering in some way for the Durham Rescue Mission. I will post the date at time on the bulletin board as soon as I confirm details.

Please let me know if you have any suggestions for places we could go or activities we could do.
